“How refreshing it is to hear some honest blues. The Cash Box Kings play with taste and feel and it was faith restoring to know there are guys out there that still know and appreciate real blues.”

— Charlie Musselwhite

While remaining dedicated to carrying on the musical traditions of post-war 1950's Chicago blues, the Kings stretch out and cover some of the other musical landscapes that blues music has traversed over the last 70 years on their new release, Black Toppin'. On display is their deep affinity for Delta and Louisiana swamp blues, jump blues and their own signature “blues-a-billy.”
